

Artist Inquiry

What is The Riverfront Renaissance Center for the Arts?

The Riverfront Renaissance Center for the Arts (RRCA) was the pioneering organization in the establishment of the Glasstown Arts District in 2001, and has since continued to lead the way, both individually and through strategic partnerships, in the growth and success of the Arts District. Since its inception, RRCA has worked strategically with city government, the Millville Development Corporation (MDC) and others to use the creative power of the arts to build an ever-growing arts district in the downtown area.

Today, the RRCA maintains our founders' dedication to selling, interpreting and exhibiting the art and educating southern New Jersey communities about folk and fine art and craft through unique, artistic and educational programs and experiences. Activities include exhibitions, demonstrations, community events and educational workshops. The programs are designed to instill an appreciation for the vital relationship between the arts, community and economic sustainability.
